Posse of Eleven Take 14,000 Gallons
Beer, Seven Still, Arrest Six
Men in Exactly Twelve Hours Time.

OFFICERS MAKE TRIP ON HORSEBACK AND WALKING

PINEVILLE, Feb. 23.—With the destruction of seven copper stills, between 12,000 and 14,000 gallons of beer and about thirty gallons moonshine whiskey, and the arrests of six men, the largest raid made in this section of the country has been accomplished. The raid was made in that part of Leslie county that joins into Harlan, and this was the first time that moonshiners were ever disturbed in this territory, according to old residents there. And all of this was done in a radius of less than ten miles and in exactly twelve hours time.

Thirty miles of the trip was made by the officers over old trails, walking part of the time, and riding horseback the rest. The officers who made the raid are W. B. Saylor, Federal prohibition agent; Adrian Metcalf, U. S. deputy marshal; Jim Waggoner, constable Bell County; M. S. Howard, Albert Simpson, Jess Simpson and Jessie Petters, deputy sheriffs of Harlan county; John L. Blanton and Henry Lewis, possemen; and Daniel Helton and Bob Helton of Leslie county who gave valuable assistance as guides.

The first arrest was made on Beech Fork, when after riding three hours, the officers arrived at the home of Peter Wilson at six o'clock in the morning, where they found 21 gallons of whiskey in his garden and following a road a quarter of a mile from his house was found a 60 gallon copper still and 10 tubs and boxes containing 1,180 gallons of beer, all of which was destroyed, and he was arrested.

From there they went to the home of George North on Big Branch, about a half mile from Wilson's, where one quart of moonshine whiskey was destroyed, and went on up Rattlesnake Hollow, following a sled road one-half mile, where two complete distilleries were found, each of 60 gallons capacity, 19 tubs and boxes containing approximately 2,000 gallons of still beer, which were destroyed. North was arrested.

A mile and a half away Peter Nantz was arrested. At his home was found one-half pint of moonshine whiskey and in a log cabin a short distance away were found two copper stills, one 35 gallons and one fifty gallon capacity, all set up with fires under them, and also 870 gallons of still beer, all of which was destroyed and the house burned.

John L. Pennington was the next arrest made. He was found at work at the distillery at his home, which was set up in furnace and ready to run. It was a copper still of 40 gallons capacity. Two hundred and fifty gallons of still beer was destroyed here also.

Going on over into Apple Orchard Hollow on Beech Fork proper, about two miles from the Pennington's home, the officers arrested Shelby Wilson and Harmon Farley with a 40 gallon still, 5 gallons of moonshine whiskey, 2 gallons of low wine and 800 gallons of beer.

It was then three o'clock in the afternoon and the officers left with the men arrested for Harlan, making the trip horseback. They arrived in Pineville Thursday noon and each of the men arrested gave $1,000 bond for his appearance before Judge Rollins Friday for preliminary hearing.

HONOR WASHINGTON HERE YESTERDAY

Flag Raising at Post Office—T. R.
Hill Gives Stirring Address
At L. M. U.

Symbolizing the Liberty which the Father of His Country won for us a century and a half ago, a new American flag is now fluttering in the breeze over the Middlesboro post office. Worn out from long use, the old banner was taken down and laid away.

Celebrations for Washington's birthday were few yesterday. Indeed, unless one was fortunate enough to be employed at a bank, the post office or an attendant of school he could be excused for not remembering that it was a holiday.

A. R. Hill of this city was a speaker at the Lincoln Memorial university exercises which were held in celebration of Washington's Birthday. His glowing prophecies for the future of the future of the institution were greeted with rounds of applause from the students.

There may be some doubt as to the authenticity of the cherry tree episode, but it was hard to believe that anything did not happen just as we have always heard it when we looked at the display in the window of Roman Trees yesterday. There was the cherry tree which had been backed down and there was the hatchets. The setting looked only the presence of little George to make it complete. The window was tastefully decorated with red, white and blue and a large portrait of George Washington was in the center.

NO SUICIDE OR FOUL PLAY IN DEATH OF LEVI CHANCE

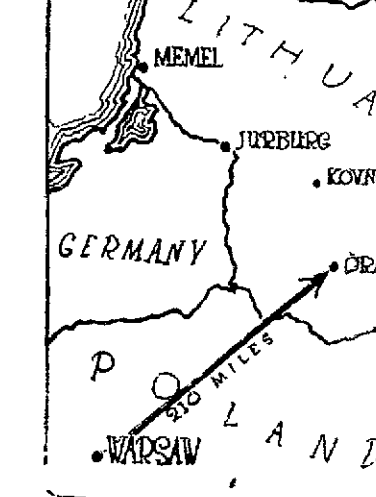

That there was no indication of suicide or foul play in the recent death of his brother, Levi Chance, postal inspector was emphasized in a communication received yesterday by Dr. H. C. Chance of Cumberland Gap from postal inspectors who had gone into the case. They say that it was clearly a case of accidental killing.

Mr. Chance had a greasy towel in his hand, showing that he had been cleaning his gun. The revolver was lying on the desk in front of him, directly in line with the bullet hole in his breast. Mr. Chance was unfamiliar with pistols. Dr. Chance says, never having carried one until recently when it became compulsory for postal inspectors to carry them.

Essays were written by all public school pupils from the third to the eighth grades inclusive when members of the fire prevention association were here. Teachers selected those which they considered best and entered them in the contest.

A letter from R. W. Snyder secretary to Supl. J. W. Bradner, is as follows: "We received in due course the essays written by the children under your supervision, which are very interesting and reflect credit upon their teachers, and I take pleasure in handing you herewith check to your order for $22.00 covering the prize awarded, together with receipt, also copy of letter from W. H. Strossman, chairman of our school committee, who with our executive committee made the selection of the essays for prizes offered."

"I feel the choice has been judiciously made, and trust same will meet your approval. The essays are being retained for our files. I am also advising the newspapers at Middlesboro in order that this matter may be given some publicity."

Both the public and the schools have been liberal in buying tickets and it is thought that the gym will be crowded tonight. Reports from Pineville indicate that a large number will attend from there.

Both teams are in fairly good condition and each is confident of victory. The game promises to be one of the hardest fought contests of the season. Smarting from their defeat at the last encounter, P. H. S. will make a supreme effort to prevent a recurrence of this defeat, while M. H. The Utilities company already operates large ice plants in nine cities of this state. Mr. Bogard says this plant is to be one of the most modern in the entire state and that he considers this town an ideal location for a large plant.

RADIO-PHONOGRAPH LATEST INVENTION, IS DISPLAYED AT GIBSON'S

A radio-phonograph, one of the most recent inventions in the radio line, is now on display at the store of Gibson Bros. The instrument resembles an ordinary cabinet phonograph. The radio apparatus is located between the sounding box and the space for records. Aerial wires will be placed over the building by an expert and efforts will be made to have a public radio concert Saturday night.

New York and other broadcasting stations of that distance can be heard by this instrument. Besides being a completely equipped radio receiving set, the instrument is a first-class phonograph capable of playing any style record. The machine is quite an innovation for Middlesboro and is perhaps the only one in this section of the state.

A THOUGHT

For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.—Ps. 90:4.

This narrow isthmus 'twixt two boundless seas.—Moore.

THE OLD AND NEW DIPLOMACY

Sifted down to rock bottom, the American conception of new diplomacy is diplomacy, the full fruits of which are made known to the public without delay. On the other hand, old diplomacy, similarly stripped of euphemisms, is a diplomacy which declines to take the public into its confidence. In both cases it is the public whose bond is being given, and to redeem which the public will be told it is in honor bound to fight, if it comes to that.

The two conferences held at Washington, one a year ago on arms limitation and Pacific problems, and the other just concluded on Central American problems, are achievements of the new diplomacy. The first was watched daily by correspondents who let very little remain uncovered, and the second, not so closely watched by the world, of itself made public the entire letter of its transactions, chief among which was the denunciation of secret treaties.

At Lausanne, wherefrom now comes rumor of speeding warships, threats and counter-threats, the public was told nothing. Even today, should war flame out and by tomorrow be an issue scorching civilization everywhere, virtually no one outside a small group of diplomats has any definite information on what precisely took place between the opposing delegations. Newspaper correspondents were denied access to the sessions; in their stead an official press agent for each of the major powers was present, and held an audience of propaganda after the meeting. Thus the newspapers of the world were furnished interested statements from rival sources, but were not permitted to observe, on behalf of the public they represented, the events and transmit that detached view to the world.

This was old world diplomacy in its most brazen mood, and whatever may be the general knowledge with reference to the Mosul oil fields and minority populations, the fact remains that a world tremendously concerned with the question of peace or war anywhere today has been excluded from proper knowledge of how this business was handled by a group of men entrusted literally with the destinies of millions of people.

Fellowship of Prayer

FRIDAY

Service the Way to True Riches

"With what measure you mete it shall be measured unto you; and more shall be given unto you." Mark 4:24.

Read Mark 4:21-32.

Light does not exist for itself, but for the eyes of those who sit in darkness.

MEDITATION. God's gift of love to his children is their most precious possession, and the more we use the more we have. The law of Divine economy is that to keep his love, we must use, and if we do not use it, we shall lose.

HYMN:

Work is sweet for God has blest
Honest work with quiet rest,
Rest below and rest above
In the mansions of his love.

When the work of life is done,
When the battle's fought and won,
PRAYER: O Lord, my Heavenly

Father, grant me grace to live this day as one of thy children. Keep me from all sin, in thought or word or deed and enable me to act like a Christian always and everywhere. If I am tired or vexed, make me patient, and if thou dost send sorrow, let me be submissive to thy holy will. Make it my chief joy to do something for thy cause in the earth. And if by reason of human infirmity I should forget thee, do not thou forget me, but pardon my sins, and accept me in the name of the blessed Savior, to whom with thee and the Holy Ghost be glory forever. Amen.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

Off went Nancy and Nick toward Jack Straw's palace in Mix-Up Land.

The general with the bread-pull bullets and the rubber sword had told them he lived beyond the fiery mountain in a domo palace.

"There's the fiery mountain now," said Nancy pointing. "That won't be hard to get over. All we have to do is to wish, as we have our Magic Shoes on."

"Oh, I don't know about that now," whined a voice and turning around the Twins beheld a little old lady with a basket of eggs. "I don't know about that! You see that tree gets higher and higher when anyone tries to go over it, so that bye and bye it touches the sun. Airplanes 'n' things like that."

"Oh, but we have Magic Shoes," said Nick. "We can even go to the moon."

"Say," said the old woman enviously. "If you will tell me what you want to go for, I'll give you my basket of eggs."

"We want to get the ring off Jack Straw's left thumb and put Mix-Up Land to rights again," said Nick. "We want it to turn back into Apple-Pie Land and let Even Steven be king again."

"You are brave children to attempt so much!" said the old woman. "Why an army of a hundred thousand soldiers and hundred thousand horses and a hundred thousand guns tried to put Jack Straw out one time, but the minute he saw them coming he turned the ring on his thumb around, and lo and behold, they became mince-meat at once!"

"We're not afraid, just the same," scoffed Nick. "Come, Nancy, let's be going."

"Wait! Wait! Wait!" cried the old woman. "My eyes may help you take them along and whenever you are in trouble, break one. The fiery mountain is not the only thing you will have to overcome."

She handed Nick the basket, and calling her dog, hobbled away before the Twins could thank her.

Besides they were too much astonished to speak, for they saw, to their amazement that the dog was made of chocolate cake and had pink icing ears, and the old lady was made of cardboard and as flat as a tin-pau.

"She's only a cut-out," gasped Nancy. "She's been bewitched too! No wonder she wanted to help us."

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling

Kate was held rigid by the sight. The gorgeous sliken garment had been drawn taut around the body of the slender, blond girl. Her arm, outstretched above her crop of short, light curls, seemed transparent.

The body lay limp, motionless. At the side of the bed, on the floor, his back toward the door, was Sing Loy. Sing was on his knees. He was silent now. His slim, black-clad in the incense-filled room.

"Sing Loy," Kate's lips formed the words, but no sound came from them. "Somehow I can't disturb him."

She turned toward Latham as she spoke. He was close to her, so close that she felt his breath on her face as she turned.

"Kate!" the word was barely audible, but Kate was startled by something in Latham's tone. She didn't venture to speak. Suddenly she felt his arms around her. He was talking.

"Kate—I owe an apology which it's too late to give." His voice was strained under the weight of emotion. "I didn't expect to find her this way. I've been a devil tonight—and I love you."

Kate couldn't speak. It seemed a sort of profanity, Latham and she projecting themselves into something so tragic.

She tried to free herself. Her hand struck the door of the scarlet-hung roof. It swung back hitting the wall with a sharp report.

Sing Loy, cat-like, was on his feet in an instant. Kate against her wish, was thrust into the blaze of color when Latham released her.

Sing Loy's face, as he stood looking silently, questioning at Latham, then at Kate, was thin, drawn, haunted. It's natural pallor was intensified. His eyes had lost their perpetual smile. His mouth was a narrow, straight, colorless line.

"What is it, Sing Loy?" Kate whispered. She had always, for some unknown reason, pitied Sing Loy. Her feeling for him now was intense.

"The droop of his thin shoulders, the helpless look of his small, slim hands as they hung limply at his side—all of it played upon her emotion."

She took a step nearer the bed as she spoke. Alice's face was turned from her. She could see only the mop of yellow, curly hair. It was oddly motionless.

"What is it, Sing Loy?" Kate repeated.

"Dead."

The word came dully from the lips of the little oriental. His expression did not change. He stood motionless, passive in the presence of his loved.

HE'LL DO
♦ ♦ ♦ By Berton Bralley ♦ ♦ ♦

He can talk to the scholar or talk to the dunce.

Though neither the one nor the other; The children he meets with take to him at once.

And so, by the way, does their mother; Wherever he goes he fits in with the crowd.

His laughter is hearty and mellow, He's neither too humble, too wise nor too proud.

But simply a regular fellow.

He isn't afraid to be acting the clown, When clowning will make people merry.

Yet dignity sits on his head like a crown, When dignity seems necessary;

He's fond of good music, however it's made, By fiddle, piano or cello,

And yet he likes jazz when it's cleverly played, For he is a regular fellow.

He's normal and healthy and honest and clean, The kind of a chap you can tie to,

And though he is faulty, he never is mean, He couldn't be that if he'd try to;

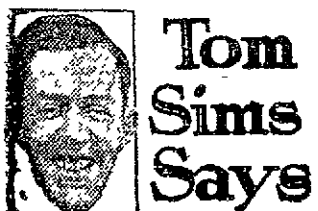

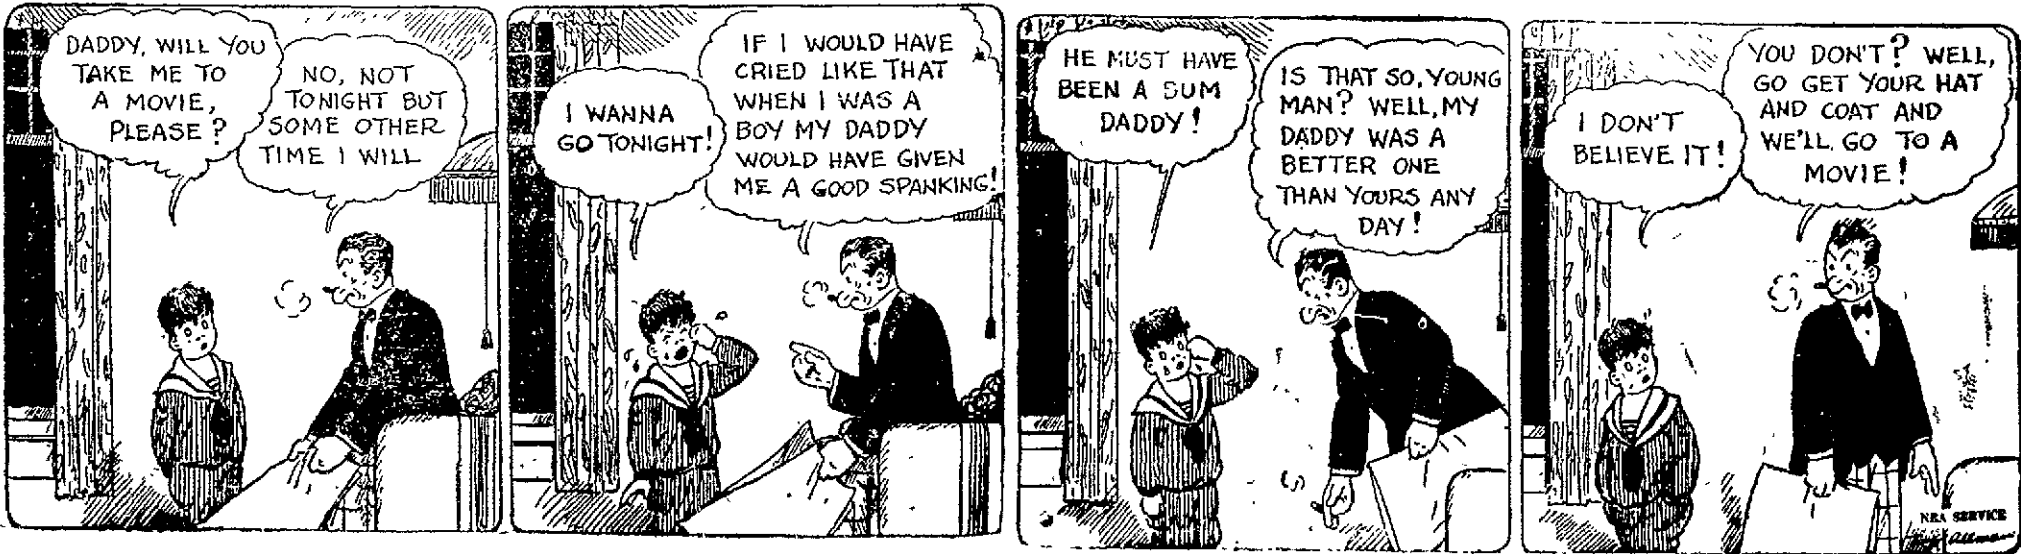

A decent American fond of his home, Wherever he happens to dwell; oh,

There isn't a type that is treading loam More loved than the Regular Fellow!

When a bachelor gives a dinner to which women are invited there must be a chaperone. If there is a guest of honor she is seated at the host's right; otherwise this seat is the chaperone's. Usually it is largely upon her good judgment and influence that the affair's success depends, and the host should thank her cordially upon her departure.

FEDERAL ACTION ONLY KNOWN CURB FOR GUN TOTING

Survey of U. S. Shows Chance of Being Murdered Grows Yearly As Laws Mocked by Pistol Carriers

MOST MURDERS COMMITTED BY REVOLVER OR AUTOMATIC

One out of every 12,000 persons in the United States will die at the hands of a murderer in 1923—if the present murder rate is maintained.

Most of these murders will be committed with the aid of a revolver or its more up-to-date kinsman, the automatic pistol.

For these are the handiest of all murder tools. There're easily concealed on the person of the slayer. Little skill or courage is required in their operation.

Can frequent murder in the United States—often described as the "biggest blot on American civilization"—be checked if revolvers and pistols are made difficult—or impossible—to secure?

What is being done to keep these man-killers out of the hands of potential murderers?

Or what should be done? To answer these questions comprehensively there has been conducted a survey of the 48 States in which scores of police chiefs have been interviewed and the gun-toting situation in every important American city has been thoroughly analyzed. This survey—the most sweeping of its kind ever undertaken—shows:

That while the carrying of concealed deadly weapons without proper permit is almost universally forbidden by state law or municipal ordinance, there is wide variation in the strictness with which such regulations are enforced.

That the sale of deadly weapons is unrestricted over wide areas, with only sporadic attempts here and there to prevent purchase of weapons by potential killers.

That where regulations restricting the sale of weapons do exist, they are nullified by the ease with which criminals can go to another state or city and buy their weapons or purchase them by mail and thus have them delivered by an agency of the United States government itself!

That police chiefs are practically unanimous in a demand that the sale of pistols be absolutely barred by Federal law except to persons who have legitimate business with such weapons.

The survey shows startling differences between states and between municipalities regarding regulations of the sale of weapons.

There is no restriction on the purchase of pistols or revolvers in Maine, Georgia, South Dakota, New Hampshire, Arkansas, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Vermont, Colorado, Minnesota, New Mexico, Wyoming, New Jersey, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, North Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Arizona, Florida or Maryland.

In most cities of these states revolvers can be purchased by anyone at any hardware or second-hand store and displays of deadly weapons grace the windows of many shops.

State law in all these states, however, forbid the carrying of concealed deadly weapons, except in Nevada, where this is covered by municipal ordinances in Reno and elsewhere.

A municipal ordinance in Portland, Me., and a state law in Maryland force the dealer to register the name and address of every person purchasing a revolver or pistol.

Albuquerque, N. M., prohibits the sale of weapons to aliens. Minnesota is planning an elaborate set of state regulations to prevent sales to undesirable persons.

Elsewhere the sale of weapons is more or less regulated by state or city restrictions—usually the latter.

Permits for Purchase Required. The most usual regulations provides that every purchaser of a revolver or pistol must present to the dealer a permit secured from the chief of police, sheriff or from a designated judge.

The dealer then is required to report the sale within 24 hours to police headquarters, giving the name of the purchaser, his age, occupation and address, and the make and serial number of the weapon. This date is filed by the authorities.

In most cases the buyers before securing a permit must convince the authorities of his good moral character and of his need of a weapon. In many states and cities he must be identified by at least two freeholders.

Regulations of this type are in effect in Oklahoma City, Detroit, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Boston, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Seattle and Portland, Ore., and in the states of Illinois, Missouri, Utah, North Carolina and Delaware.

Dealer Must Have License. Less stringent regulations in other localities provide simply that the dealer must secure a license to vend firearms. Such regulations are in effect in Rhode Island and Wheeling, W. Va.

A city ordinance in Memphis, Tenn., forbids the sale of small firearms to any undesirable person under penalty of $50 fine.

Connecticut, by state law, requires every dealer to report to police headquarters within 24 hours the sale of every revolver or pistol, giving the purchaser's name and address and the make and serial number of the weapon.

Birmingham, Ala., goes no further than to forbid the display of dangerous weapons in store windows and other prominent places.

Texas absolutely forbids sale of revolvers and pistols by a state law. But this law has been evaded in a wholesale manner by the subterfuge of leasing weapons for 90 years.

Tomorrow the Daily News will print the results of the survey showing how the various states and cities deal with carriers of concealed weapons.

MISS ALLIE BIGGERSTAFF

The recent death of Miss Allie Biggerstaff has thrown a cloud of gloom around her wide circle of friends in this city, for she had endeared herself to many during her residence here. By virtue of her consecrated Christian life and her unselfish service for others, the memory of her will long be a guiding star to her friends here. One of them, Mrs. C. E. Cooke, has written the following tribute to Miss Biggerstaff:

Miss Allie Biggerstaff, who has labored and worked all her life for others has left this world of sorrow.

She was loved by all; now she has gone to meet her loved ones in the best tomorrow.

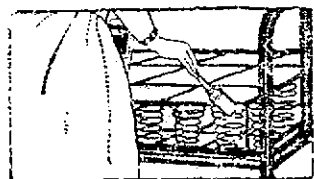

She never tired of doing for others, always smiling as she mingled with all whom she knew; her work is ended here below, we know.

The Master has called her home from her labor of love, and there is great rejoicing in Heaven above.—Contributed.

Too Much Meat Hurts Kidneys

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you.

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up, and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure any one; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Ouch! Rub Backache, Stiffness, Lumbago

Rub Pain from back with small trial bottle of old "St. Jacobs Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back—and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Drink Water If Kidneys Hurt

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back pains or Bladder bothers.

Too much meat may produce uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, urging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to help neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus often ending urinary and bladder disorders.

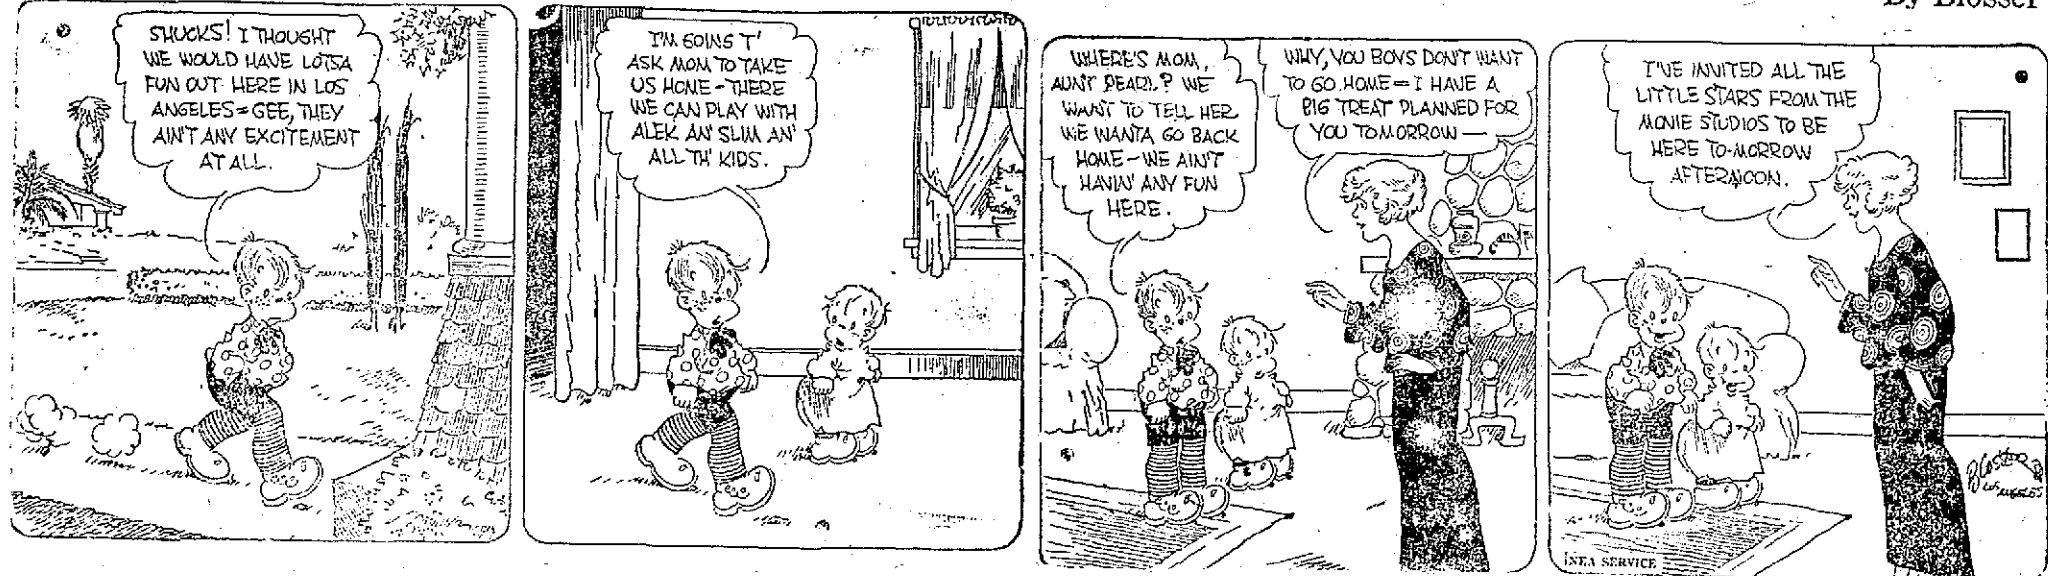

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to help to keep the kidneys clean and active. "Drink plenty of water at all times."

Would "Return if Not Used" Seventh Marriage License

PINEVILLE, Feb. 23.—A marriage license was issued Thursday to H. C. Miracle, 60 years old, and Lou Ella Miracle, 26 years old. When Miracle applied for the license he told the clerk that he was not sure that he would use it but if he didn't he would return it. He had just found out, about fifteen minutes before, that his wife had been granted a divorce from him, which by the way, is the sixth divorce that has crossed the thorny matrimonial path of H. C.'s, and three divorce suits were dismissed. And if he uses the license it will be for his seventh wedding, according to court records, but only the second marriage with Lou Ella. However, Lou Ella is yet to be persuaded, hence his doubt about needing the license.

He and Lou Ella were first married about five years ago, just after she had divorced her first sixty year old husband; and according to H. C., he would not think of remarrying the same woman if it weren't for their two-year-old child. Neither wants to give it up, so it seems the best solution to use the new marriage license. H. C. was first divorced from Mary Miracle in Sept. 22, 1904. Some time after he married Serena, whom he instituted divorce proceedings against Jan. 29, 1908, but the case was dismissed; on August 10 the same year Serena sued him for divorce which was also dismissed, and then their marital troubles vanished from court records for three years and again he files a petition against her. This time he charges that she will not cook for him, but again the case is dismissed. This is Aug. 7, 1911.

January 16, 1913, Serena is granted a divorce from him on the grounds that he shot at her. Having been divorced from Serna, H. C. married Mamie, whom he divorced June 17, the same year. Later he remarries Serena, and again after a long-fought trial lasting through eight terms of court, he is granted a divorce from her April 7, 1917. But again they marry and again are divorced. The last suit was granted January 20, 1919, and this time the judge decreed that neither should marry as long as they both lived. But Serena soon died, so Ella was married by H. C. and they have now to their credit one divorce and the possibility of the use of the second marriage license.

cup of stirred cheese, a teaspoon and a half of salt in eight teaspoon pepper and a half teaspoon of onion juice.

Turn into buttered cups set in a pan of hot water and bake in the oven, taking care that the water does not boil.

When the point of a knife can be run into the center of a cup and come out with no custard adhering to it, remove from the oven.

To serve run from the cups onto a platter or individual plates with pimiento sauce made by adding pimientos (canned red peppers) which have been rubbed through a sieve to cream sauce. To each cup of the sauce allow two peppers.

These timbales may also be served with a tomato sauce.

Your Pies

When you want your pies to be brown on top brush them with milk before you put them in the oven. If you want a nice shiny lacquer finish use the white of an egg.

Polishing Ivory

You can restore the color to ivory handled knives and forks when they have become discolored or old by rubbing them with very fine sandpaper or emery.

Coconut Too Dry?

Sometimes shredded coconut gets very dry standing in the cupboard. It can be freshened and greatly improved by soaking it in sweet milk a few minutes before using.

Keeping Them Handy

If you will keep an envelope pasted on the inside of your cook book it will take care of the recipes you clip from other sources and you may be able to find them when you want them.

Use Hot Water

Your tinware will keep much better if you wash it in hot soapy water and dry it with a towel. Drying it on the stove darkens it and sometimes melts it.
